Located in Santenay, the eight-hectare domaine of Jacques Girardin produces two Premier Cru red wines, Clos Rousseau and Clos Beauregard, as well as Pommard Villages and Bourgogne Pinot Noir. He also produces Santenay Blanc, Bourgogne Blanc, and a limited amount of Chassagne-Montrachet “Morgeot” Premier Cru. The entire Girardin family are renowned winemakers, including Jacques’ father Jean, and his brother Vincent. Jacques has been producing wine from his own domaine since 1978.

Adhering to traditional Burgundian wine-making techniques, Jacques’ wines age in oak for at least twelve months. His 1er Cru Santenays are characterized by aromas of blackberry, cassis and spice. All of his red wines are supple and fruity, and drink well when young. The general style is slightly rustic with delicious, lingering fruit. His white wines are finely balanced with notes of vanilla and spice intermingled with aromas of apples and pears.
